TEACHING ACTIVITIES

Courses Taught:

Taught graduate courses in the areas of community, rural social change and community development. These courses are

RSOC 552 Theoretical Frameworks for Rural Community Research (Fall, odd years 1999 to 2009; Spring 2014)

RSOC 516 Social Change in Rural America (Fall, even years 1998-2010, Spring 2013)

CEDEV/RSOC 452 Rural Organization (Fall, 1997, 1998, 1999) and on-line (Spring 2001, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, Spr 2012), a required course in the MPS in Community and Economic Development.

CEDEV 576. Applications and Practices for Community and Economic Development (Spring 2005).

CEDEV 597C Research Application and Practice (3). Summer 2013; Fall 2012, 2013

Undergraduate courses in the area of community development and rural sociology. These courses are

RSOC 11 Introduction to Rural Sociology (Fall 2002, 2003, 2004)

This course was team-taught with Dr. Richard Stedman in 2003, 2004.

CED 152. Community Development Concepts and Practice (Spring 2008, Fall 2008). This is a required course in the undergraduate major Community, Environment and Development begun Fall 2007.

Other Teaching-related Responsibilities:

AEREC 590 Colloquium (Fall 2005, 2006, 2007). This course is an introduction to graduate school and to the graduate programs and substantive areas in the department. It was team taught with Dr. Ted Jaenicke in 2005 and 2006 and with Dr. Jeffrey Stokes in 2007.

Graduate Program Coordinator, Community and Economic Development Graduate Program, January 2004 to present. The conversion of this program from a blended resident/online M.S. to a totally online professional MPS beginning in Fall 2007, has resulted in an increase in students enrolled in the program from roughly ten to about 150 by 2013, with another seventy participating in the online Graduate Certificate in Community and Economic Development.

Outreach:

Served on the Pennsylvania advisory group and as a member of the Training Team for the USDA Stronger Economies Together (SET) program in Pennsylvania. The instructional team worked with two SET applicant regions to offer the SET educational materials and provide opportunities for the applicants to build plans and strategies to move ahead with achieving their goals. This work occurred in 2010 and 2011. This work was co-sponsored by the NERCRD at Penn State, but the Center was not able to identify faculty to participate on the training team, so I learned about the effort and volunteered to participate on the Training Team. The Training Team substantially modified the SET training materials in response to participant concerns the material was too basic, and made the 'training' sessions more interactive to encourage the participants to identify their goals and to develop a plan to begin to achieve their goals.
